
Poster for "Jane Austen by the Sea" exhibition at the Royal Pavilion

Introduction:

The Royal Pavilion & Museums is opening a display in 2017 in the Prince Regent Gallery in the Royal Pavilion titled "Jane Austen by the Sea".

Brief:

Design an A3 poster for the exhibition aimed at a 18-25 age range. The poster should appeal to a younger age profile.

Aims:

Design a poster with a clear, well structured and cohesive layout with a good use of visual hierarchy. Images/illustrations should be informative and relevant.

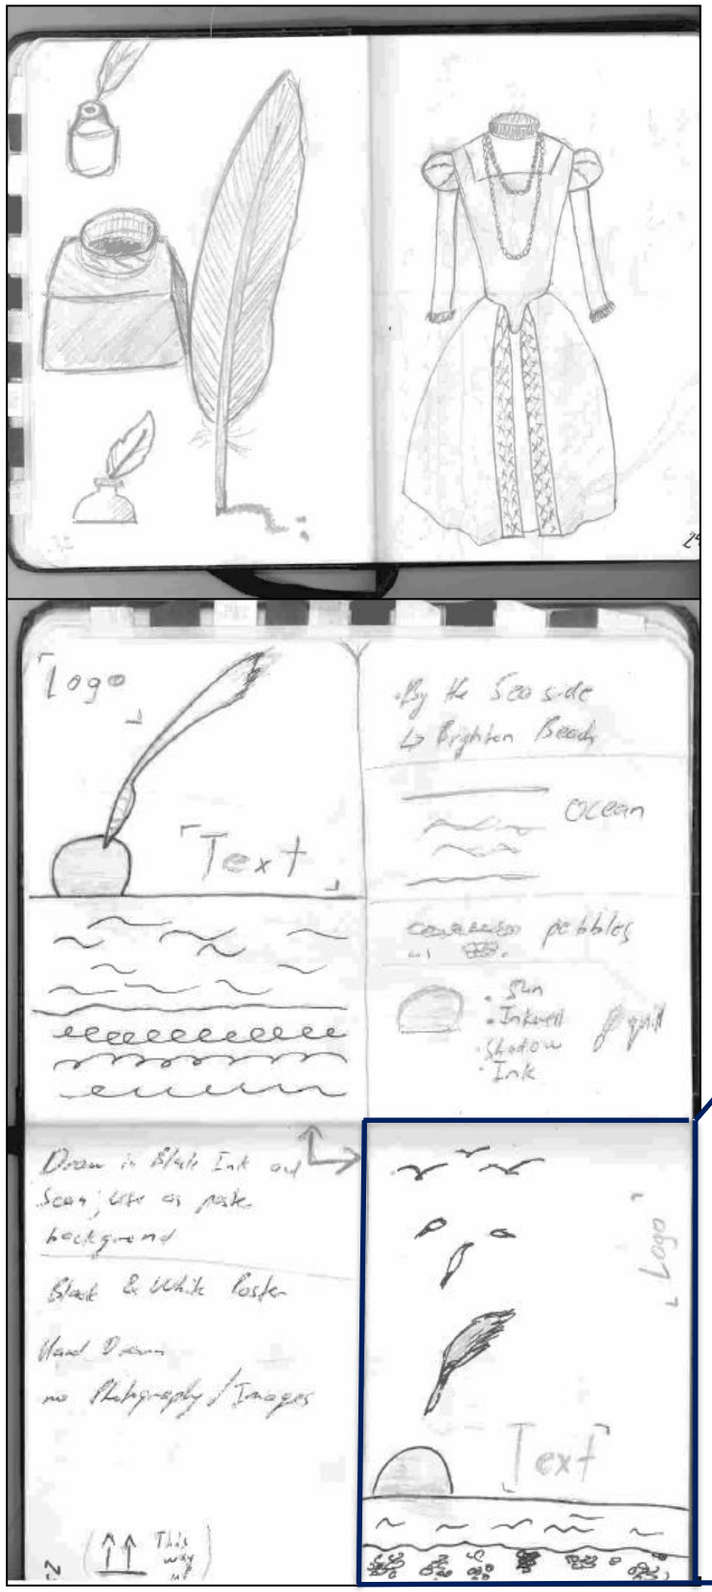
Initial Ideas



Visual imagery in the poster may embody the 18/19th centuries:

What products did the people at the time wear?
How did they lead their lifestyle?
What was the fashion like?
How did their homes look?

What did Jane Austen wear?
What did she write with?
What did she write on?

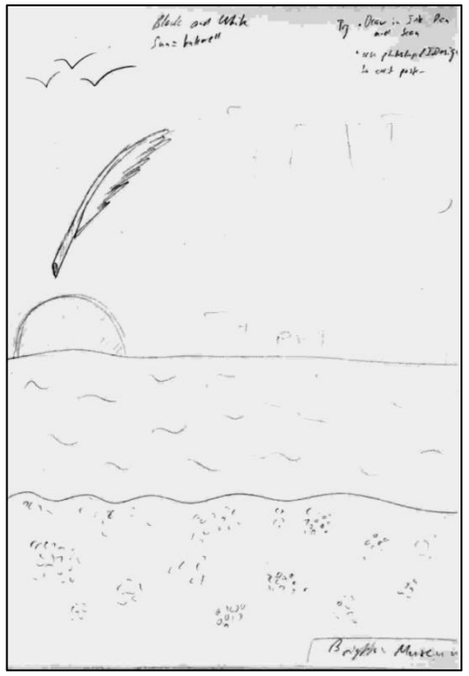
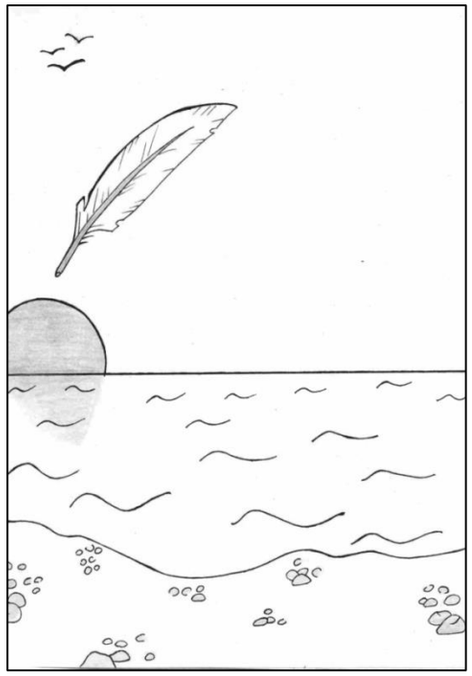
Development

Version 1 – hand drawn

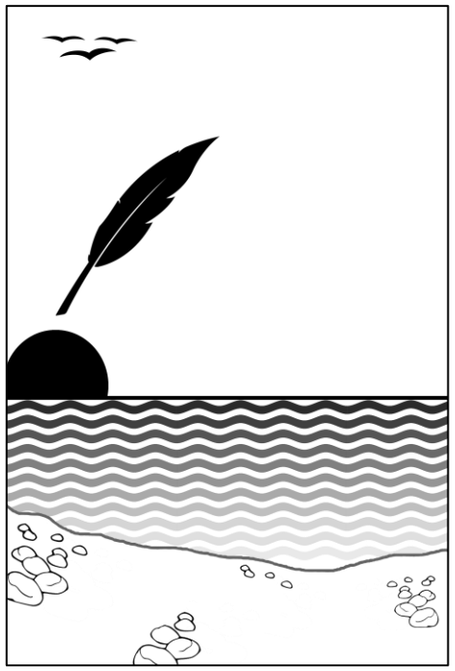


Rough draft in pencil on A4 scanned to test overall look.

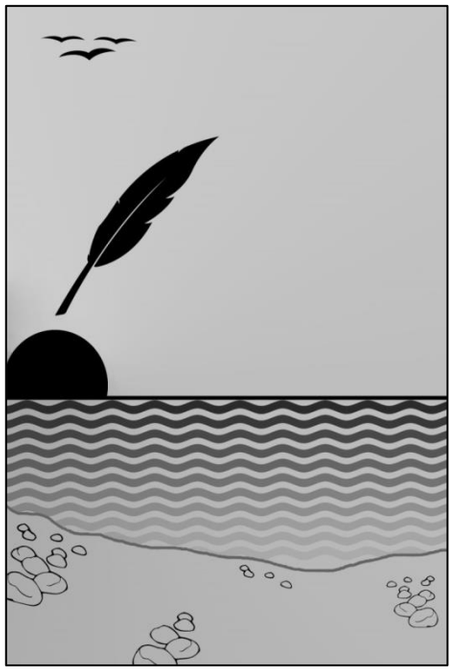


Detailed pencil drawing traced in pen.

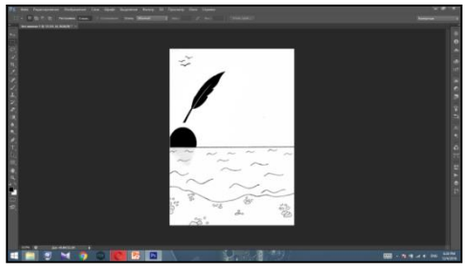
Version 2 – computer edited



Same idea created on photoshop in black & white.

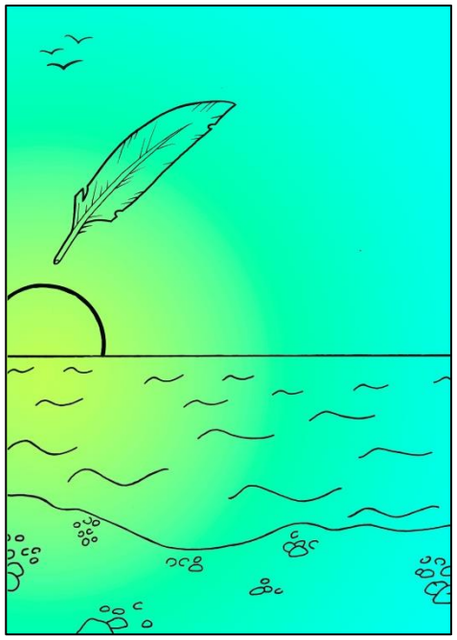


Experimenting with monotone colour between black & white

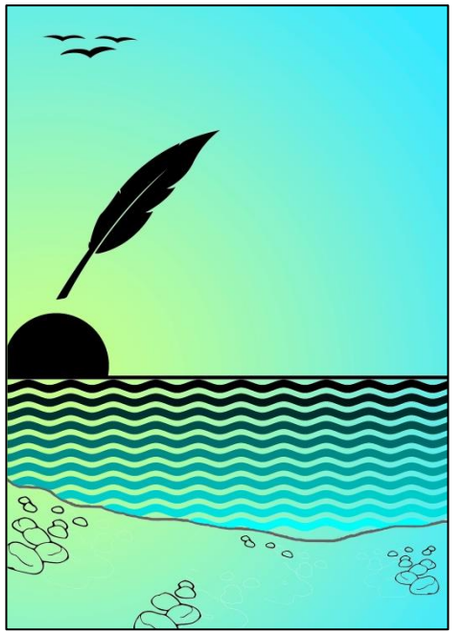


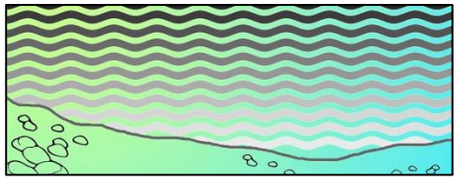
Combination of two versions

Refining image using photoshop to enhance appeal



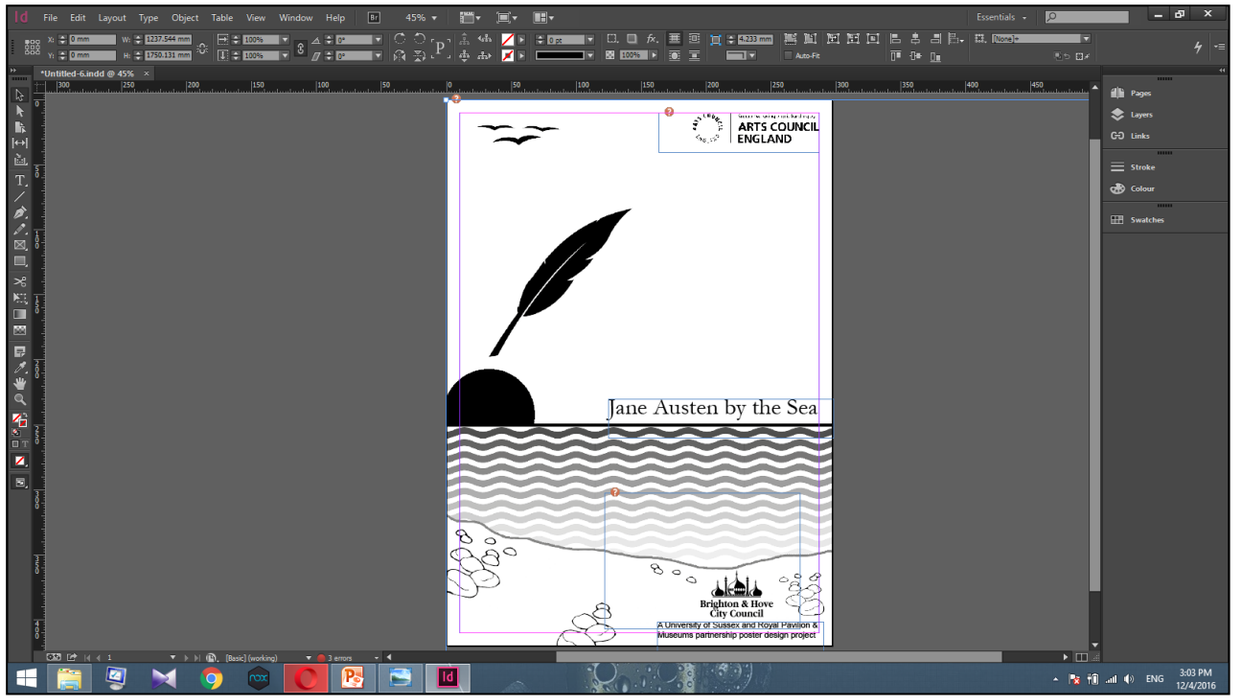
White background removed and replaced with some colour.





Experimenting with brighter colours. Ultimately waves have been rendered with a colour gradient change.

Poster Layout



InDesign used to apply and organise The Royal Pavilion logos as well as the text.
Title is placed above the horizon line of the sea.
Logos placed in the corners.
